Children work as bonded labourers whether it is industries manufacturing bidis, matchsticks, bricks or firecrackers. Already a large number of children have met an early death following mishaps in the manufacture of firecrackers. Recently, it was reported that children working in the match making and firework factories at Sivakasi in Tamil Nadu were charred to death. Those who survived have not been able to recover completely. In yet another incident in Delhi, at least four children died in a bizarre incident. Meanwhile, in the Rohtak tragedy, those who were killed were, in fact, bonded labourers. They used to be locked inside the factory gates and were forced to work for little or no wages. However, the owner of the factory who has perpetrated these inhuman atrocities was charged with a minor bailable offence-causing death due to negligence.

Questions :

(1) Which industries usually employ children as bonded labourers ?

(2) What happened in the Sivakasi tragedy ?

(3) Who were the victims of Rohtak tragedy ?

(4) What happened to the owner of the factory at Rohtak ?

(5) Give a suitable title.

- (b) (i) Translate the following paragraph into Gujarati or Hindi : 7

Good begets good and bad begets bad was a new idea five thousand years ago. In ancient Egypt, rather than feeling directly responsible for what happens, people believed they were constantly under the attack of demons and bad spirits. Protection from these negative energies was obtained by pleasing God. Gradually mankind realized that one's own thoughts and actions had more to do with the results that occurred in one's life. By finding God within ourselves we could access the power to create miracles. When people finally got the notion of Karma or cause and effect, then the next idea was forgiveness.
