Success in life depends upon persistent effort, upon the improvement of moments more than upon any other one thing. A great amount of time is consumed in talking nothing, doing nothing and indecision as to what one should do. If one would be successful in the future, let him make the most of the present.

These ways of wasting time, one of which is contemptible, are gossiping mischief, making lingering calls, and mere motion when at work, thinking of nothing or planning for some amusement – travel of limb more than mind. Rushing around smartly is no proof of accomplishing much.

All successful individuals have become such by hard work; by improving moments before they pass into hours, and hours that other people may occupy in the pursuit of pleasure. They spend no time in sheer idleness, in talking when they have nothing to say, in building air-castles or floating off on the wings of the senses; all of which drop human life into the ditch of nonsense, and worse than that, worse its years.

Through the ages, people have been unhappy in their relationships. Speak to any father; he complains about his children. Speak to any husband or wife, they have complaints against each other. We need to understand that the whole idea of a relationship begins from that point when you have already established a sound, beautiful, and dynamic rapport with your own self. Isn't it a joke that we are bothered about others but we are not worried about our own self ? We often ask as to how can I have a healthy relationship with others, but the question should be how can I have a sound relationship with myself ? A person who is himself lost cannot give directions to others.

Relationships become wondrous only when you are already happy with yourself, when you are not seeking something from anyone, rather you are there to share your insight. That is why the best relationships in your life are always the ones in which you are not expecting anything. On the contrary, you are ready to deliver something to the other. That's the time when you can be perfect in any relationship, as a husband, a wife, a child, a mother, a father or a friend.
